

A Possible Road Map for Governing Board Reconstitution

People from a range of backgrounds joined discussions organised by DfE over the summer of 2014 to discuss their experience of governing board reconstitution in both an academy and maintained school context. The key points raised by participants have been summarised in the form of this possible process road map, which aims to help governing boards (GBs) with the practicalities of how to approach the process of reconstitution.

Supported by